

Scientists broken speed of light

Sunday, 16 September 2007

Scientists have exceeded the speed of light since 2000, causing a light pulse to travel hundreds of times faster than normal. It raced so fast the pulse exited a specially-prepared chamber before it even finished entering it.

The experiment is the first-ever evidence of faster-than-light motion.

<http://www.cbc.ca/health/story/2000/07/20/speedlight000720.html>

http://www.livescience.com/technology/060518_light_backward.html